Untreated Waste in Rivers

New York City's Woes Mount: Now Sewerage Workers Strike

By Natalie Layzell

NEW YORK, June 8 (IHT).— Workers in the city's sewage treatment plants today joined a strike by drawbridge tenders ond other municipal employees, with the possible result that 14 billion gallons of raw sewage will flow into the surrounding waterways

Mayor John V.; Lindsay was quick to assure New Yorkers that the strike against 12 sewage treatment plants posed no immediate health hazard. Supervisory em-ployees can keep the plonts operoting for several days, "but not indefinitely," he said

However, another city official rom the Environmental Protecion Administration, said: "The realment plants are thut down. ... ut what we are doing is bypessing hem, allowing the untreated twage to flow into the rivers." He scoffed at a union prediction hat the schage would back up in esidential plumbing.

Thus, the city went into a secnd day of sweltering heat—tem-eratures were in the low 90's ith its miscries mounting. The trike of municipal workers, which egan early yesterday when draw-ridge workers walked off the job press for a pension plan, spread his morning in city incinerators nd garbage landfill dumps as ell as the sewage plants.

Yesterday, hundreds of thonands of motorists were stalled a massive troffic jams on the ottest day of the year when 18 tenders walked off with "vital arts." leaving 27 of the city's 9 swingbridges in open position. There abandoned city trucks on alor highways. Roads from all be suburbs were turned into a lant parking lot.

Traffic Improves

However, the traffic situation ased considerably today because army Engineers, after having sorked all night had managed o break into control towers and wing several of the bridges closd. But eight bridges still renained inoperable.

Police guarded those that had cen returned to operation. The workers, members of District Council 37, AFL-CIO State, County and Municipal Employees Union, walked out over the failure of the state legislature in Albany to approve a pension pact negotiated last year with the city. Despite three temporary court injunctions served yesterday, Vicinr H. Gotbaum, head of the 122,000-member union, promised to escalate the strike. But Mr. Gotbaum announced later that his union 'has decided not to escalate the strike tomorrow," because negotiations were now under way with the city. Mayor Lindsay said, meanwhile, that the work stoppages had also spread to 90 percent of the Parks Department, and he called for volunteer "clean-up squads."

the prisoner-of-war issue, properly coupled with a total Amerlean wilhdrawal, could be settled while the Thieu-Ky regime is still in power in Saigon, but he indicated that Hanoi will not agree if the United States intends to continue to arm and support the South Vietnamese forces.

These points emerged during an interview with Xuan Thuy, chief of the North Vietnamese delegation, at his suburban Paris headquarters in Choisy-le-Roi. The veteran diplomat answered a series of questions put to him with a minimum of the political poicmics so familiar at the weekly meetings in the Paris forum. The questions and answers went this way:

Question-You have said the United States should fix a "reasocable" date for complete and unconditional withdrawa! of "all" American forces. Would you clarify the word "all"?

The ngreements-plus adoption of a pay provision close to that voted earlier by the House-strengthened chances that Congress will pass a two-year draft extension before the Selective Service Law expires June 30.
It could mean that the measure

Rogers Loses Bid On Security Costs

By Jonathan C. Randal PARIS June 8 (WP).—The Nixon administration today fail-ed in its efforts to win the formal support of its 22 major trading partners for sharing the burden of America's worldwide responsibilities.

The setback reflecting growing foreign irritation with new U.S. claims for special consideration because of the major American defense commitment, was apparent in the communique issued after the ministerial session of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

Until 4:30 this morning U. S. egotiators unsuccessfully sought to win acceptance of wording in the communique which would recognize what Secretary of State William P. Rogers yesterday called "the costs of the role the U. S. plays today in the security of the free world."

The communiqué made no mention of the key word—burden. Instead the Americans had to settle for the vaguer recognition for the "position of certain mem-ber countries concerning the special factors affecting their balances of payments."

Neotral's Role Privately American officials explained that this oblique language was all that could be expected because the OECD includes such nations as Switzerland, Austria and Sweden, who-because of their policy of neutrality-refused any endorsement of the U.S. defense role.

However, in previous communiques issued by the consultative economic organization, which groups the non-Communist world's major industrial nations, the United States had won less vague wording from its partners in recognition that chronic and grow-ing American payments deficits were part of the price for the U.S. overseas military presence. Indeed, one insider said that only the presence of five U.S. senators-all stoutly backing the burden-sharing approach-allowed tne American dere tract the wording that finally appeared in the communique. All European nations were onposed to the U.S. draft wording. the insider said.

Nonetheless, Mr. Rogers, who chaired the two-day meeting, ex-pressed his satisfaction with the "unanimous" support for setting up a "small high-level study group" to investigate the possibility of further international trade negotiations. The OECD secretary general.

Mass inoculations of refugees in the big camps outside Calcutte are being carried out nonstop by medical teams. Within the city itself, the small outbreak of the disease appears to be under control.

But conditions in the camps are getting worse as the flood of refugees continues.

The West Bengal state commissioner for refugees, B.B. Mandal, said today there were an estimated 45 million refugees now in West Bengal and at least another 1.5 million in other states bordering East Pakistan. Previous estimates had placed the number of Pakistani refugees in India at 47 million.

Mr. Mandal said the only ultimate solution to the refugee prob-lem was that they should return to their homeland when the situation allowed. India could not assimilate them or feed them, he added.

However, several refugees said today they would be willing to return to East Pakistan only if the Pakistani Army left and that part of the country were allowed to decide its own future.

"The people are getting impatient. They are very restive now," Maj. S.K. Deb, administrator of the Salt Lake camp inside the city limits of Calcutta, said.

Indian officials have been nervously expecting the Communists and other anti-government parties to make capital out of the refugee problem and have been surprised, up to now, how little evidence there has been of this.

But flags of the pro-Moscow Communist party of India have started to appear at the Salt Lake camp, which is situated in a new housing development.

Maj. Deb said that two nights ago two agitators appeared at the camp and tried to whip up the 12,000 refugees living there on meager rations with no sanitation or water.

Despite what Deputy Under Secretary of State Nathaniel Samuels called the need to deal with the "significant and serious immediate problems in the international trading sys-tem," neither the United States nor its partners expected any new trade negotiations to start before 1973 at the earliest.

The United States had little trouble in winning support for Mr. Samuels's call to limit the communiques phrase defining the group's terms of reference to "trade related matters" in a "narrow" sense.

Major Offensive

Most military planners say that despite the North Vicinameso effort, they do not expect North Victory to be able to begin a major offensive in South Victnam before the presidential election there in October.

"If there is a big push," one official said, "it probably won't come until sometime in 1972, after another dry season."

The analysts say that Handl had in the past pulled most of its transport and road repair companies north from May through October because mud and earth elides made truck movement too difficult. But this spring, rather than the usual pattern of substantially reducing the introduction of supplies at Mu Gia and other passes from North Vietnam into Laos, there has been no discernible stackening of effort. The analysis say this reinforces the notion that an all-out resupply attempt is under way.

Long Trip

The difficult trip through Lacs into Cambodia and South Victnam normally takes about three months. With the added problems caused by heavy rains, the trip is expected to take even longer, the analysts note.

Aerial reconnaissance photos have shown bulldozers straightening and widening sections of Route 23 between Sepone and the Boloven Plateau. This meandering route is from 40 to 60 miles from the South Vietnamese border along this stretch.

In addition, both on this route and on more heavily traveled roads, such as Routes 911 end 92, photos bave shown men placing piles of gravel and logs at fre-quent intervals, foreshadowing

Clifford: Withdrawal Paci Would Free POWs in Mon

By Fred Farns

WASHINGTON, June 8 (IHT). bying effort in Congre —Former Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford said today he had "reason to believe" that the week for a total U.S. wit before 1972 begins. On Capitol Hill yesterd North Vietnamese and Viet Cong Robert L. Leggett, D. Ca would free American war prisonthe second-ranking member Viet Cong delegation to t ers within 30 days of a U.S. agreement to pull out its forces peace talks, Nguyen Van from Indochina by Dec. 3L. He told three peace groups who are meeting here in a campaign to bring the war to a close: "I believe that the war could well be over by the time the last U.S. forces are withdrawn." Mr. Olifford, who had argued for reducing U.S. participation in the war when he headed the Defense Department in the latter months of the Johnson administration has often criticized President Nixon's Vietnam policy Now a Washington attorney, he has repeatedly urged that the ad-ministration set a definite date for withdrawal, which President Nixon has refused to do. :

The Description Mr. Clifford described his plan in this way: The U.S. would agree to remove all American forces from South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos by Dec. 31 and to stop all ground, air and naval operations in South Vietnam, North Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia by that date. In turn, he said, Hanoi and the Viet Cong would agree to free all U.S. prisoners within 30 days of a joint Washington-Hanoi an-nouncement of the U.S. pledge to pull out. Communist forces, he eald, would refrain from attacks threatening the safety of American personnel during the with-

Mr. Clifford told the Associated Press: "I have reason to believe the North Vietnamese and the National Liberation Front would agree to this as the result of conversations I have had with a number of people who have been active in this field."

He refused to name the people be referred to, but said: "Some were Americans and some were not Americans, and they have given me reason to believe that this type of settlement would be acceptable to the other parties involved."

He spoke at a "convocation for peace," here sponsored by a group of organizations mounting a lob-

Xuan Thuy Interviewed

Major Issues Can Be Settled Despite Thieu, Hanoi Says

(Continued from Page 1) only of the South. He had added the North. As to Laos, Pathet Lao Prince Souvanoupbong has said those captured will be released when all bombing of Laos is stopped. As to Cambodia, that comes under the competence of Prince Eihanouk, Question-If President Nixon set a withdrawal date to your satisfaction, would the prisoners be immediately released, or released only after the end of withdrawal or concurrently at the same pace as withdrawal?

Answer-Here Mr. Thuy threw up his hands. "I cannot answer for the time being, for this is the key to settlement. As long as Nixon does not set a date we cannot go into details of a settlement. The question of prisoners relates to the aftermath, the consequence of war, so all questions should be settled first. But we have shown flexibility..."

Question—Since you know

American opinion is much concerned about the prisoners, why do you not offer to release all of them once Mr. Nixon has set a total withdrawal date to your specifications?

Answer-"If I did that I would be working for Mr. Nixon and not the Vietnamese people and not for world peace because Nixon wants to use the prisoners for bargaining and to cover up his dark schemes. I should take into dark schemes. I should take the dark schemes account the American public but what the Vietnamese are also what the Vietnamese are thinking about the U.S."

Question What would you consider a "reasonable" date for withdrawal, given the logistic problem — six months, nine menths, one year from the date of an appouncement?

Answer-"A reasonable date was proposed by the PRG" which. he noted, on Sept. 17, 1969, had proposed withdrawal by June 30, 1971. "But Nixon did not agree. Let him propose a date. He should set it." When asked if the FRG timetable of just over nine months was reasonable, he replied that "I don't mention any peried of time now. Now I'm not willing to mention any time." He recalled that Mr. Nixon had prorosed withdrawal in 13 months, but Mr. Thny did not mention that that was a call for North Vietnamese withdrawal from the South as well.

Leaning forward, Mr. Thuy went on to say that the seas and the air are "under U.S. control" and the U.S. has lots of ships and planes and that retired Marine Gen. David Shoup had said it would take ten days to prepare withdrawal and 15 more to with-

Question-You have repeatedly referred to "two crucial questions" involved in settling the Vietnam problem, the military and the political questions, and have said they are "inseparable," a statement you made again at the June 3 Paris meeting. The as removing the Thieu-Ky regime from office and the formation of a coalition government. Is this political issue also a condition for prisoner release?

Answer-"The question of the release of prisoners is related only to the military question. This shows our flexibility. It should have been linked to the political question. Question-But what does "inseparable" mean then? Answer-"If we speak of the whole question of Victnam, of the settlement of the war, of ending U.S. aggression, then the military and politicol questions should be linked. But if a reasonable date is set, the question of prisoners may be settled." Question-Why do you say "may" and not "will"?

Answer-"Yes, you can put it down will be settled, from now on it is will'. Question-You know Mr. Nixon has said you have offered only to discuss the prisoners' release. Answer-"Nixon is unwilling to withdraw. Therefore he tries to use one pretext and another. Nixon's allegation about discussing and not settling is because he is unwilling to settle. He wants to eplit hairs." Question-Still, given a satisfactory withdrawal date, the prisoner issue will be settled even if Mr. Thieu and Mr. Ky are still in power in Saigon and there is no political settlement? Answer-"Right. Moreover, this has been leid down in point one of the PRG program of September, 1970." Question- How automatic would prisoner release be once a satisfactory withdrawal date is

Answer-Let Nixon set the date and we will discuss that. Question—Since you have said withdrawn and prisoner release could be accomplished while Mr. Thieu and Mr. Ky are still in power, what about military and economic aid from the U.S. to their regime afterwards?

Apswer-That is the point of linking political and military questions ... It shou'd also settle the question of the Saigon administration because, suppose the U. S. withdraws but it maintains the Saigon administration and continues to give it military aid and that administration continues to repress the people of the Question—Then as a condition for prisoner release there must be no such continuing military and economic aid?

Answer-Mr. Thuy avoided a direct response. After the question had been put three times in various forms, he said that "I think you should read again the PRG's eight points. It is clearer than my explanation." When the interviewer said the eight points were not all that clear, he took another tack

"Have you ever asked Nixon these questions?" he said. "Nixon has troops there and he wants to control the Saigon administration. So you can get clear answers from him on what are his intentions. I understand he doesn't want a total withdrawal and wants to maintain the Saigon administra-

Question—The impression you have left by your answers is that you are not willing to make a clear differentiation between the military and political questions. though the military one is primary. Is that correct?

Answer—"Quite right" because "a radical, thorough settlement" of Vietnam is necessary. "If the United States withdraws all its forces but maintains an advisory mission and continues to give military equipment aid to the Saigon administration, then the people of the South would continue to oppose the Saigon administration and then the United States would have to step up military aid. But Thieu-Ry would not be stable and the United States would have to send troops and we would return to the previous situation."

In concluding, Mr. Thuy said that "our desire is a total U.S. withdrawal and a change from the Thieu-Ky regime so the peo-ple of South Vietnam can form their own government of their own choice. Then the people of the South will accept American aid on the basis of mutual agreement.

The North, too, be added when asked, would be prepared to establish relations with all countries, including the U.S., and to accept aid on the same basis.

During World War I he served in the Belgian Army and then as secretary-general of the Belgian commission to purchase mil-

Mr. Gutt was perhaps the person most responsible for getting Belgian leaders to London in 1840 to form a government in exile when Belgium was occupied by the Germans. He served as ed to 93 degrees Fahrenheit, and tempers mounted with it; as striking municipal employees, with abrupt efficiency, closed all the city drawbridges to traffic. As an example of effective "work action" it was remarkable; as an illustration of organized irresponsibility, tt was shocking; as an aspect of mounting friction between town and country in the United States it had a national significance.

The strikers were protesting the failure of the state legislature to consider the contract which the city negotiators had granted them: a contract providing for retirement times and rates comparable to those of the municipal uniformed services. There was good reason to boggle at the cost the contract would entail, especially since it would invoive escalating demands by other branches of the municipal work force. But the strikers wera acting within a pattern of general revolt by New York City against the dominance of a predominantly nostate, nonmetropolitan legislature; a dominance which virtually ensures inadequate funding for city services, and which has brought new demands that the city become a state—with all the independence of action that implies.

The problem extends beyond New York State. In Washington, President Nixon has proposed a revenue-sharing plan that would allow states and municipalities to eke out their own tax resources from the huge sums that flow from them into the national treasury. It is far from a perfect plan, and has aroused criticism from both city and

> And, just as New York City complains because so much of tts fate is decided by the Senate majority leader, from Niagara Falls, and a suburban assembly chieftain, so in Washington tt is pointed out that a preponderance of influence resides with Wilbur Mills, Mr. Mills has, by eeniority, a stranglehold on the most influential committee of the House of Representatives. He has been sent to Congress by Arkansas's Second District, comprising 15 counties. New York City, for its part, is composed of five counties—and 19 congressional districts.

> "One man, one vote," has done much to end the old geographical basis for apportioning legislative seats, which long fastened absolute rural control on many states and nnbalanced the House of Representatives itself. It is still frozen into the United States Senate. But even where the population is theoretically represented equitably, such practices as senioriy and political alignments and deals can place the hard-pressed cities at a great disadvantage.

> The strikers in New York, who harm the city much more than the upstate legislators who are their ostensible target, are only compounding a grave problem. But even their willful selfishness and short-sightedness point up the nature of that problem. It is one that calls for profound changes in the apportionment of political authority and responsibility within the United States.

East Pakistan: A Wound Unhealed

An outbreak of cholera among Pakistani Tefugees in India's West Bengal region has cost 1,000 or more deaths and threatens to take a larger toll before adequate medical supplies can be gathered and-more to the point-before they can be put to use among the hordes of refugees, many of whom are simply on the roads, their suffering not even contained within camps. Since the Pakistani Army suppressed the East Pakistan autonomy movement in March, the flow of terrorized and uprooted Bengalis has reached an estimated four or five million. And despite the government's claim that normality has returned, the refugee flow goes on. The government has set up 20 "refugee reception centers" in East Pakistan to "help rehabilitate Pakistanis returning to the country," hut there are no reports these centers are heing patronized.

As a result, India, whose West Bengal region hardly had resources to spare before the Pakistani explosion, is being overwhelmed. International contributions for Pakistani refugees have come in relative dribs and drabs; the lesser disaster of the East Pakistan cyclone touched the world's heart, and its pocketbook, far more deeply. It is a sobering comment that the refugee pileup had become so normal and accepted that it took an outbreak of cholera to restore it to world consciousness. Meanwhile, India has had to cope. It deserves far more help than it has so far received in accommodating its Pakistani wards.

The need persists to enable the refugees to return to their homes. A few weeks ago President Yahya Khan appealed conciliatorily to them to do so, but no significant number seems to have heeded his call. Press censorship remaining as rigid as It has, one can only guess why. Only the other day did his government finally agree to let the United Nations establish itself as a funnel for world relief inside Pakistan proper; until this time, tha requirements of "law and order" and, one suspects, of army pride, have kept the government from this overdue step.

President Yahya has made some effort to restore political life in the Eastern wing. However, having outlawed the Awami League, the vehicle of the East Pakistani independence movement, he has had trouble locating local politicians of any stature willing to collaborate. The United States and other. important providers of aid to Pakistan continue quietly to withhold assurances of further support. They should keep the pressure on until President Yahya is in a position to demonstrate that his government intends to do a good deal more than it has to heal the wounds of March.

Sugar Plum for South Africa

The United States officially condemns apartheid and enforces a United Nations arms embargo against South Africa-and then hands South Africa an annual present of $4.8 million in the form of a sugar subsidy. This "foreign aid"-the General Accounting Office called it that in 1969-to a highly advanced country with a booming economy, a country that practices a virulent brand of racial discrimination, is only one of many diegraceful effects of the Sugar Act.

If the House committee has its way, the United States will continue for at least three more years this bonanza to a South African industry based on what can only be called indentured labor. The committee has approved a hill that would let South Africa sell 60,000 tons annually-about 6.5 percent of its sugar crop-in a protected U.S. market at double the world price. The whole arrangement flonts one of the committee's own criteria namely that in allocating sugar quotas Congress will take into account the "need for economic development" in the producing countries.

It also violates the spirit of a provision in the Foreign Assistance Act aimed at denying aid to governments that violate basic freedoms and practice racial or religious discrimination, But the Agriculture Committee'e arbitrary behavior does not stop there. Its chairman, W.D. Poage of Texas. will try to persuade the House Rules Committee to bring the Sugar Act to the floor under a rule barring amendments.

Such a rula would foreclose any onportunity for a direct House vote on the South African enbaidy-in effect a vote on apartheid-which a group of congressmen. including New York Representatives Dow. Reid and Bingman, ara seeking. The House would have to accept or reject the entire act, and in that case its heavy subsidies for domestic as well as foreign producers probably would insure passage.

At best, little can be said in defense of the Sugar Act, founded as it is on protectionism and forged in a murky climate dominated by lobbyists, special interests and sordid logrolling. One of the few compensating factors in the current bill is that it does assign modest quotas to some of the poorer African countries.

But nothing at all can be said for an annual gift by the American taxpayers of nearly $5 million to the practitioners of apartheid in South Africa. Congressmen ought to have to stand up and be counted for or against this monstrosity.

Liberation Movements in Africa

Dark Labyrinth

By Charles Mohr

Y USAKA, Zambia, There are some who believe that the struggle for black rights in southern Africa will someday erupt into the nightmare of a full-scale race war.

There are also blacks who fest that the wbite-minority govern-ments in Rhodesia, South Africa and in the Portuguese territories of Mozambique and Angola may someday launch punitive retaliation strikes against guerrilla sanctuaries in black Africa.

For now, however, the etrug-gie between the white regimes and black forces is waged in a much less intense. If rejentless, manner. Some incidents this spring illustrate the present character of a prolonged conflict.
At the Liberation Center building here, which houses the headquarters-in-exile of black revolutionary movements, a young clerk for an Angolan liberation unit began to unwrap a parcel received in the mail. It exploded. killing him.

Kidnappings by both sides. along the black-white boundaries have become fairly common. Recently a guerrille group known as Coremo captured aix Portuguese in Mosambique and announced that they were taking them to Zembia.

Zambian officials said that they had never permitted the prisoners to enter Zambia and had had no part in the affair. But the Por-tuguese angrity began a semtblockade of food shipments that customarily reach landlocked Zambia through the Mozambique port of Beira.

Railway shipments of corn were simply delayed and at one point-food reserves in Zembia fell to an. alarming level-about a two weeks' supply. The new cornharvest is now beginning here and the problem is easing. Black Africa has led the demands for economic sanctions against the white south. But economic squeezes can work both Riodesian authorities increased the rall freight rates on food shipments to Zambia. Rhodesia also threatened to impose a large general-freight surcharge unless Zambia stopped reducing the amount of its copper exports sent out through Rhodesia.

Zambia Expelled Guerrillas

Three years ago Zambia was forced to expel an extremely militant Angolan guerrilla orga-nization that had blown up the rail line that runs from Zambia ihrough the Congo and Angola to Lobito Bay on the Atlantic. Zambie supports liberation but it needs that railway, and the Portuguese had indicated that they would delay repairing it until they got some satisfaction.

In one of the most unusual of recent tactics, South Africa's Premier, John Vorster, rose in his Parliament to disclose the existence of three years of correspondence between him and the Zembian President, Kenneth D.

Vorster's motive seemed to be to try to discredit Kaunde domestically and internationally. Kaunda is expected to lead the fight against proposals that hlack nations enter into a diplomatic discussion with South Africe.

No one can really be said to be winning this kind of diffuse. cautious etruggle. Even decisive trends are difficult to detect. But both white and black forces have had some successes in diplomacy. which is assuming a growing importance in the conflict.

Wine, Women, Worthy Vintages

"Wine is like a woman. Thirty years fine, but any more..."

-Spokesman for the French National Wina Growers' Federation, IRT, May 28, 1971.

By Waverley Root

PARIS (IHT).—Come, come, spokesman, you are off your rocker. A woman endowed with the qualities which produce a worthy vintage-nose. body, bouquet reaches her prime at about 40. Sauternes types go off earlier. Champagnes are headache producers at any age, but if you must go in for Champagnes, remember that they are only tolerable frappes.

Forty-year-old wines can have their points too. Spokesman. I happen to be a 1934 fancier myself but I have been finding it increasingly difficult to locate any survivors of that year. It must have been 15 years ago that I finished drinking three restaurants out of 1934 Volnay, two in Paris and one in London. Up to three years ago, however, I was still able to find 1934 Cos d'Estournel, and it didn't require decanting either, any more than women of the same year. There are plenty of 1937 women still on band, but I cannot say whether it was or was not a good vintage year. The labeling is confusing. Women unlike French wines, do not advertise their age on the container, nor like Italian wines, their alcoholic con-This makes women a riskier investment

No risk was involved, for instance, when Lawrence Bender of Boston, Mass., paid $5,000 for a bottle of 1846 Chateau-Lafite, which was the incident which caused Spokesman to libel women and wine. Being a wine dealer, Mr. Bender must know precisely what is inside the package—a great deal of sediment and a thin vinegary liquid, which, he said, apparently dead-pan, "I'd like to drink myself." Only a woman of a great vintage year would believe this one and only a woman of a very great vintage year would share it with him.

You don't have to go back 125 years to run into Bordeaux which have lost all their body and most of their taste. I drank one like that a few weeks ago in a very highly rated restaurant of Paris, which shall go nameless to spare it shame. It is true that I was trying a 1928 vintage, to see how it had lasted, but it was priced up to the ceiling, unjustifiable to begin with, for when it was laid down its cost must have been insignificant in comparison with present levels. A wine waiter should know the condition of wines in his cellar, and in the case of an old one, he should either issue a warning or replace the bottle if it turns out to be undrinkable. This one did neither.

Wines moch older than that one may turn out to be quite good, and a sommelier who knows his business can guide his customers to them. It was not so many years ago, just before Drouant-Est, which had a fine cellar, gave up the ghost, that I got into a conversation with the sommelier about old wines and he promised to serve me a couple with no charge if they had gone off. As a practising food writer, I should be able to roll off glibly for you the names of the bottles be produced, but I can't-I have forgotten them. I remember the dates, though—the red was 1915 and the white 1908, and they were both excellent, This is not my limit in old wines, however. That region. The champion was a bottle of Château-Chalon "snow wine." This wine depends for its success on what most winegrowers would consider a redoubtable enemy-frost. The grapes are not picked until November, which at the altitude of the Jura mountains guarantees frost, and usually The result is a wina which lasts forever and is of excellent quality, though, of course, not comparable to a great Bordeaux or Burgundy. The ancient Romans knew the role of frost in produc ing this Jura (for them, Sequanian) wine.

Among its more noted admirers were François I Henri IV and Metternich, who called Napoleon's attention to it. Napoleon ordered some and appreciated it, but this was hardly the acid test— Napoleon was not a good judge of wine, nor of women either, for that matter. Château-Chalon snow wine is reputed to be drinkable after 100 years, and I was told at the time of my Champa-gnole stop that one cellar in Chateau-Chalon still had drinkable wine dated 1783. This outdoes Mr. Bender's 1846 wine, but no Médoc, not even Château-Lafite, could make that distance. Château-Chalon I drank that night was not a hundred years old, but it was 80, and the best testimony I can offer to its quality was that I left early the next morning, without sleep and needing none, and suffered nary a headache.

One person who did drink 100-year-old wine and live to tell the tale was Pliny the Elder, a little under 2,000 years ago, and it was wine of the very first vintage year in history. This was 121 BC, when Italy experienced a particularly long, hot summer, and the grapes were all but cooked on the vine. It was nature's method of producing a heavy dessert wine. Wine jars in those days were stamped with the name of the consul presiding at the time. The consul was Lucius Opimius, so this became Opimian wine, with so high a reputation for quality that many later, wines were referred to as Opimian wines, either to suggest that they were worth comparison with it, or perhaps simply by confusion between the nama Opimius and the word optimus, best. It was a little over the century when Pliny sampled an Opimian Falernian wine. It had become crusted on the inside of the amphora and had to be scraped off and dissolved in younger wine for him to taste it; but even so he described it as mel asperum, rough

The revaluation has the effect of lowering import prices and making exports less profitable so that some export production might be diverted to the home market.

However, the government is still trying to deal with the problem of encouraging the estimated $1.5 billion that entered the country prior to revaluation to leave so that credit conditions can be tightened.

NEW YORK June 8 (AP-DJ). The Federal Reserve acted yesterday to remove some funds from the banking system, causing Interest rates on Treasury bills to rise.

Most dealers took the action as an indication U.S. monetary policy in coming weeks will be more restrictive, in an attempt by the Fed to slow the rapid expansion in the money supply. That would mean increasing upward pressure on interest rates, and dealers quickly increased their bids to avoid building unwanted inventories of Treasury bills.

The rate on ontstanding Treasury bills went up 1.8 percentage points on short-term issue to 4.43 percent and 1:4 point on longer maturities to 5.98 percent.

The Fed's operation to absorb funds came in the form of outright sales of bills from its own holdings. Such transactions take money from the banking system because dealers pay for their purchases by drawing down their commercial bank accounts. In addition, sales add to the supplies of bills in the open market, caus-ing lower prices and higher yields. Dealers described the volume of Fed sales as relatively modest, and said the sales were of bills generally due in three months or less. One dealer said he expected to see more sales in coming days. Stock Thefts Spiral in U.S.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP) -Attorney General John N. Mit-cheli said today spiraling thefts of securities by organized crime could, if continued, "impair the public's confidence in securities as a means of investment and of transacting business."

MODERN Where in the World can you find a higher yield with less risk than in Mexico has enjoyed one of the highest rates of economic growth in the world in recent years", says an authoritative U. S. Department of Commerce Study. Why? Because here's one of the world's most stable currencies. Because qualified experts call Mexico " the standout example of responsible government and business in Latin America." Because there is a controled economic explosion going on in Mexico.. in industry, public works, consumer goods, and international trade... which has created a true "investors market", with a yield which invites comparison anywhere in the world.

MODERN MEXICO!

Maybe this helps to explain why the international "smart money" men are putting their funds down Mexico way... and why maybe you should, too, for exactly the same good reasons. Here are two offerings among many... BANK TIME DEPOSIT CONTRACTS: Depending upon the length of time involved, these short-term loans to Mexico's Industrial Development Banks yield a net of 9% and up, after Mexican taxes... high enough to make them one of the world's most attractive and safe investments. Interest is payable monthly. Minimum investment: $4,000.00 U.S. dollars, or equivalent in any internationally recognized currency. BANK LIQUID BONDS: These Demand Deposits pay 8.73% net after Mexican taxes, interest payable quarterly; and your money is immediately available whenever you need it. (These Bonds are also ideal for use in compounding interest earned on Bank Time Deposit Contracts). Minimum Investment: $4,000 U. S. dollars, or equivalent in any internationally recognized currency.

Seagram's V.O. Canadian: what it means to you if you're a little bit jaded with your present drink. It means you have a chance to drop an old habit and pick up a new one. A better one. A smoother one called Seagram's V.O. Canadian whisky. In America (where smoothness is practically an obsession), more people prefer V.O. than any other brand of imported whisky.

THE FLOW OF MONEY

A bi-weekly study of the movement of funds into and out of listed stocks

FOR BANKS, BROKERS, FUNDS MANAGERS, ETC.

This special report on approximately 2,000 listed securities is prepared 26 times a year for money managers and other professional investors. Via a specially prepared computer analysis the FLOW OF MONEY (FOM) shows the POSITIVE and NEGATIVE movement of dollars into and out of the most active listed stocks.

Following each day's activity on the New York and American Stock Exchanges the Flow of Money analysis begins. Through our computer work we seek the POSITIVE and the NEGATIVE action In each stock for the day. This activity is then compared to the action which took place during a specified period of previous history and the daily results are then recorded in our history file. The results of this analysis are published in our spacial FOM report every other Friday. Clients receive each issue of the Flow of Money every

ONE YEAR'S HISTORY, EVERY OTHER WEEK Each Issue of the Flow Of Mancy will show and FOM ratings for each stock an a WEEKLY basis for the latest 52 weeks of activity. Thus, at a plance, each subscriber will be able to see the changing movement of the Flow of Money for each security, and how these changes affected the price movement for the stacks concerned. With seven etocks listed on a page (similar to the example shown) and each issue containing 281 pages, the Flow Of Maney report covers olmost 2000 etocks. Each issue is printed on 8 1/2 × 11 band paper and bound in a ring hinder for easy reference at home, in the office or while traveling.

STUDY THESE EXAMPLES OF THE FOM Here are just seven examples of the FOM history for a selected group of stocks caveting the past year. Study them carefully because they clearly depict their awa maney mavements during the past hactic year.

BAUSCH & LOMB

All of the examples shown here appear as they do in our bi-weekly service. Seven stocks to a page (alphabetically), with 52 weeks of price (Wadnesday close), and our FOM rating. These examples depict the period between June 1970 aad May 1971. Sausch & Lomb's FOM figures one year ago were decidedly acgotive, Considering market conditions at that time this is not so unusual. As the FOM figures demonstrate, there was a steady and consistent NEGATIVE flow Of Maney in the stock, Such negative readings are deemed by us to be a warring sign Suddenly and with no prior warning the FOM results for Bausch & Lomb turned POSITIVE during the period ending September 23, 1970. At that point (42 3/4) Bousch & Loren had its first positive reading (plus 4) in many months. Not only have these positive results remained in our analysis of the Flow of Maney in this stack, but in this case they have in foct increased in intensity. If you study the CHANGES in this stock's FOM ratings you will see that they remained in the toons or below for about four months. Then the FOM taring storted to accelerate. Sy March 1971 this reading was over 100 PLUS, with the stock now in the 70's. Coetinued very strong FOM readings have accompanied Bausch & Lomb's major price advance in recent months.

DISNEY (WALT)

Very few high caliber American securities have been able to demonstrate the strongth shown by Disney in recent years. In the FOM report an this stock shows here you can see how the move-ment of manay has swung back and forth as investors attempted to gauge the stock's potential. Poor readings in an FOM calumo are evident at the start of the history depicted here. Although the American market as a whole was near its bottom at this point (May 1970) and FOM analysis was advising that are avoid Disney until November 1970. At that point the FOM readings turned POSITIVE and bave remained positive for the past six months. During this period of time Disney has bad as almost uninterrupted advance at close to 100 %. GENERAL ELECTRIC

Here again you can see a stock at the toil end at a long period af negative FOM as the market was bottoming aut in May of 1970. GE torned POSITIVE in July 1970, well prior to what we now know as the hig bull market. This indicates that heavy accumulation of General Electric began to occur very close to the hear market laws by lorge investors. Again it is interesting to see that the FOM has not only stoyed positive but has in fact accelerated in strength. Accompany ing this show of strength the price of this major hlue chip has managed to rise about 50 points, or 70 % since the Flow Of Money turned from Infernational Business Machines took somewhat longer to pull out of the 1969-70 hear market. Its FOM rating did not change from minus to plus antil mid-Navember of last year. Prior to this IBM had folled almost 100 points since its initial negative FOM reading appeared back in February 1970. Except for a very short period of time IBM remained negative from February 1970 through November 1970 when, at a price of 299 IBM's FOM rating turned POSITIVE. Again we suggest that you study the FOM ratings corefully since they turned positive last November. Initially these figores moved higher rapidly. By the year and the FOM readings moved slightly lower. This was followed by little or no upside movement in the price of IBM's stock. In the New Year the FOM readings began to going strength until mid-March. Once more a slightly lower move in the FOM resulted in a slight pallback in the price of the stock. This is a good example of the sensitivity of the FOM and its reaction on prica when viowed in a high pricod, octive security. Since mid-April IBM's FOM ratappears ready to turn back to negative Flow Of Mane? 18M's price has already began to retreat from its high and it will be interesting to watch the FOM in the coming weeks.

MEMOREX -

It has not been a hull market for ALL stocks and not ALL stocks have had their Flow Ot Maney retings move from minus to plus. Memorex is a good example of this. The stock has had steady NEGATIVE readings for 50 of the past 52 weeks, and as you can see this has not had a very good affect on the price of the stock.

SYNTEX

Syntex recoully began to show signs of its old self. After a rather extended period in the doghouse new life has entered this old high flyer Our Flow Of Money analysis demonstrates just how rapidly investors moods can change. As you see here Syntex had rather high NEGATIVE readings one year ago. By late summer last year these readings, olfhough still negative, began to shew improvement by becoming smaller in num-ber. This indicates money flowing INTO a stack. Late in September the FOM actually turned POSITIVE while Syntex was selling at 35 3/4. Thereafter the slow but steady improvement in this stocks' Flow Of Money readings has been followed by both higher volume and higher prices for the stock.

AMERICAN HOSPITAL SUPPLY We have removed AHS from its alphabetical list ing to demanstrate a more current picture of the effect of the FLOW OF MONEY on a stock's price. Look at the history of maney flow in this stock for the post year. As you can see, the stock has not really porticipated in the big market rebound from last year's lows. This is not too surprising in view of the steady negative Flow Of Money in the Stock for 51 of the past 52 weeks. Snddenly in the last week shown this FOM has turned POSITIVE, for the first

A two-way guess for the queen of trumps is very rarely a complete guess: An astute declarer will usually find a clue somewhere to give himself better than a 50 percent chance. On the diagramed deal an indication from the defense induced South to abandon the normal method of handling his trumps.

South's reverse bid of two spades on the second round did not show as much strength as it would do in standard methods since the partnership was playing "precision" and the opening bid was limited to 15 points. North could have bid four spades directly over two spades, so his delayed jump to four spades was a slam try. South accepted the invitation, somewhat optimistically, and reached a slightly inferior slam after using Blackwood. The club five was led to East's ace, and he returned the seven, hoping to give his partner a roll. He knew that South would have falsecarded with jack-three, for the play of the three would have revealed the position clearly to

The club return not only gave Scuth a trick-he discarded a diamond-but gave him a clue. It was clear to the declarer that East was hoping to give his partner a ruff. It followed that East held club length and could be expected to be short in trumps. This consideration caused South to abandon the normal play of leading a low trump to dummy's king, which will win whenever East has four trumps. He chose the alternative of the ace, with a

At the fourth trick, South ran the spade jack successfully, and East discarded a diamond. With one good guess under his belt, the declarer found a way to avoid guessing the heart situation. He led to the diamond are in dummy and ruffed a diamond with spade ten and finessed the spade eight.

The spade king was led from dummy, simultaneously drawing West's remaining trump and squeezing East. If West had hap-pened to hold the heart queen he would have been squeezed later in the red suits when the two dummy.

THE CONSENT OF THE COVERNE AND OTHER DECEITS By Arthur Krock, Little, Brown, 309 pp. 58

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

SIETT years' service to Washington is enough to try anyone's temper, and now that he is no longer covering the news there Arthur Erock is free to let 'er rip. He does with a venseence, beginning with the very word "deceits" is the Ricker.
Threwing down the gauntlet on the first page, he firstly executs that our democratic system "has proved inadequate to deal with the problems confronting the United States." As a personal acqueintance of 13 Presidents and winner of four Pulitage Prises. wimper of four Pulitser Prises Krock may be presumed to speak with a certain authority—and he meds every bit of it, for much of what he says is violently con-trary to the prevailing spirit of our times. The age demanded an image of its accelerated grimace": Well, it won't get it from Krock. In "The Consent of the Gov-ical professionals are described with comfortable condescension as the vastly entertaining cast of "an American should be "an American classic comedy." To support this view. Krock devotes his first chapter to a relaxed look at political animals at play. His favorite examples of their humor give us some sort of idea of what a shockingly exotic creature Adlai Stevenson, for exampie, must have been in Wash-ington. After this benign opening the author gets down to business and lists the many aboves of power that he sees as undermining life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness: civil service entrenchment; trade unloss that float the law; pressure from industry and finance; organized crime; the seniority system in congressional committees: The bullying of the executive by the judiciary branch of government, which is shoddily "rewriting the constitution."

Turning to the presidency. Krock finds the history of that office to be one of aggrandize-ment In our time, he says, the atomic threat of Soviet Russia and Communist China has given the President license to invoke emergency powers at almost any time Reviewing the strengths and weaknesses of our presidents, he shows a marked preference, in this century, for Wilson, Hoover, Truman, Eisenhower and Nixon. U.S. Davis Cuppers Will Defend on Clay

By Neil Amdur

Defying dismal past-performance charts and eyeing an uncertain future, the United States has decided to defend the Davis Cup on clay courts this year in Char-

Robert B. Colwell of Seattle. president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, said yesterday that no plans were being considered to resurface the courts in Charlotte for the challenge round Oct. 9, 10 and 11.

"Clay is the surface," Colwell said after returning from a se-ries of international meetings in Europe. "I talked to Cliff Richey in Paris and told him that it would be on clay. He was quite surprised, but I told him: 'Cliff, you're the best clay-court player in the world. Why should you

The United States has made two successful defenses since re-gaining the 70-year-old silver from Australia in 1968. Both challenge rounds, against Romania in 1969 and West Germany last year, were contested on fast asphalt in Cleveland and ended in easy victories for the

By contrast, some of the most frustrating chapters in American tennis came in 1965, 1966 and 1967, when United States teams were upset by Spain, Brazil and Ecuador, respectively. All three defeats were inflicted abroad on slow clay courts.

This year's top challengers are mainly European nations whose players are more accustomed to the mental disciplines and baseline tactics demanded by clay than the serve-and-volley attack synonymous with American grass and hard courts.

Colwell said the decision to play on clay bad been based on conversations with Edward A. Turville, the American captain, and Charlotte's interest in the series. Another reason might have been the realization by American officials that this could be the last challenge round in the Davis Cup. A movement has been growing among the smaller nations to abolish the challenge round and force the defending champion to play through the gruelling and costly series of elimination matches like every other country. Last night, in a sudden reversal

NEW YORK, June 8 (NYT).— of policy, Australia decided to vote in favor of abolishing the challenge round, a move once unthinkable during the golden years of Australian tennis.

"To abolish the challenge round will take away something precious from the game," said Neale Fraser, the Australian Cup captain and a former top-ranking player. "But the writing is on the wall. Certainly it's what all the smaller nations want."

If the challenge round is abolished when the Cup nations meet in London next month, playing this year's round on clay may be the most practical way of preparing America'e eligible players for the rigors of a 1972 Cup campaign.

The United States faces a difficult position: it is the founding Cup nation, it has belped the competition celebrate some of its most memorable hours and it has urged broader guidelines in recent years to include contract professionals now barred.

But as with international politics, American tennis officials must tread delicately in those corners where new pockets of power have emerged. And for many countries, the Davis Cup has become their final symbol of hope for the sport.

"What would summer be without a good mystery to curl up with in a hammock?" is a book reviewer's favorite literary device for nudging us into that tiresome old pool of blood with those tedious, boring corpses whose deaths we cannot believe in because the writer had never bothered to breathe life into them in the first place.

The tradition of compiling lists for "summer reading" probably grew out of flattering assumptions about us. The reviewers must have reasoned that as we. book lovers all, packed to head off for vacation, we agonized about bow to pack our limited baggage space with the most rewarding material available. Hence, suggestions for summer read-

P.G. Wodehouse

'My books are all out of date'

By Israel Shenker

REMSENBURG, N.Y. (NYT).-P.G. Wodehouse, the author, stood hesitating at the front door of the large white house on the country lane.

Finally be came out onto the lawn, beaming expansively with the practice of 89 years. A menagerie of four dogs and five cats poured out with him. His wife, Ethel, followed them all.

A baronial English manor would have heen just the ticket for the Wodehouses -a gloomy old pile with crenellated battlements and creaking parlor maids. Port for the gentlemen, fluttery gossip for the ladies. The paragon of a butler hovering in discreet attendance. A vicar coming to call, the village constable paying his respects, dotty aunts up from London, eccentric uncles under foot.

But instead, the house is Suburban U.S.A. rambling, white-wood, red-shuttered on 12 acres with lawn and trees.

The maid goes home at 3 in the afternoon. Wodehouse cannot drive, so he stays bome instead of gallivanting off to the city. His wife drives, but rarely farther than nearby Westhampton to do the weekly food shopping.

Remsenburg itself has no shops comcerce is barred from the community. There are many comfortable bomes for the slaving rich, but hardly the sort a Briton would feel at home in.

And not a Jeeves in sight. That extraordinary and genial gentleman's gentleman is the bero of Wodehouse's most popular novels, performing impeccably in the service of Bertle Wooster, an amiably innocent young Englishman of leisure, Jeeves knows all and can navigate through every spot of rough weather. It does bother Wodehouse that in real ife the old servant class to which Jeeves "My books are all out of date," he said, "In my last one. The Girl in Blue," the man was taking in paying guests, and, of course, be had staff to look after them. But it is awful, what's happened since then. It's like having the rug pulled from under you. "Between the wars my stuff was absolutely up to date. Everybody in England had staffs and butlers and people. Then the Second World War came, and it's all disappeared. I think it's coming back a bit. Guy Boltoo goes over to England quite a bit, and be tells me he's seen several butlers.

They're beginning to creep back, like shy animals. But I don't think there are any on Long Island."

Wodehouse and Bolton-his Long Island neighbor-have collaborated on many musicals, the party of the first part writing the lyrics, and Bolton doing the book, They have put together a new musical entitled "Jeeveswnz" which they would like to have staged in London.

"I don't think it would go in America." said the lyricist. "The idea of the story is that Bertie becomes a bookie. He's tired of losing money as a punter. Over in America a bookie is such a shabby sort of thing. A bookie in England is rather a picturesque figure. He attends the race meetings and takes bets."

Wodehouse has considered moving Bertle and Jeeves to his own neighborhood on Long Island.

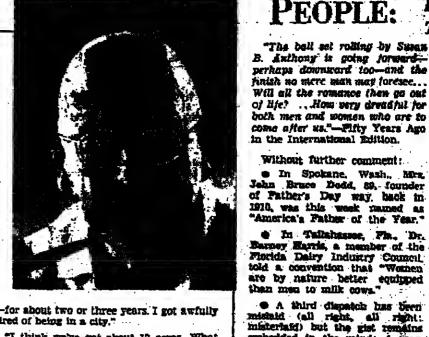

"But what would they be doing here? the anthor wondered aloud. "Yes, that's the thirs. What would they do? They could come over all right, but what would I make them do?

A new Jeeres novel, set once more in England, is coming out in October, and in Wodehouse's bedroom the drawers are full of starts for still more. "I put down a note," he said. "You know, the situation. And then I say Jeeves solves everything." in Long Island life, Mrs. Wodehouse provides the solutions. About 15 years ago the two of them were having lunch with the Boltons, and Mrs. Wodehouse went for a stroll and bought the house on Basket Neck Lane.

"When I said to Plummie Tre bought a house, he said, 'Oh, you're bought a bouse,' Mrs. Wodehouse recalled. "That's all. That's the way he is. It's very difficult to understand Plummie. He's got the soul of a child-very sweet and very simple. The house was quite ghastly then. Why did I bny it? Because I was insane."

Wodehouse has not always taken kindly to being called Plummie—an affectionate contraction of the first of his given names. Pelham Grenville, But then a cricketer named Plummie became famous, and Wodehouse resigned bimself proudly. "It was a dreadful place when we came here," said Wodehouse, "a sort of shack, really. But I wasn't a bit surprised wheo she bought the house. I was rather pleased, because I'm crazy about the country. I hate living in a town. We had an apartment on Park Avenue—a penthouse place

-for about two or three years. I got awfully tired of being in a city."

"I think we've got about 12 acres. What is now our park was a sort of jungle when we came here. I imagine there were all sorts of horrible animals. Now it's rather pleasant. We've got a sort of wood, and you go through it and you come to a sort of creek. Of course, it was much nicer when we came down here, because there were practically no houses. I should think seven or eight have been built since we not here." His wife said: "It's a very happy com-munity here, but they don't care enough about animals to suit me. A few weeks ago we found a bag on the roads pupples tied up inside, one dead and three alive. We took care of them in our shelter. It's called the P.G. Wodehouse Shelter, and

I go there often to belp. I give the animals treats, bones and meat and chicken." Helping to care for the animals, for her husband, the house and for the future have Mrs. Wodehouse on the run, "I'm the only driver in the house," she said, "If I'm feeling dead ill, I still have to get up and drive. I have to do all the managing, otherwise we wouldn't have a cent left." Though he is an absolute wizard at nalling together the plot of a book, the complications of everyday life are more than the outhor can foce.

Wodehouse has written about 90 books and perhaps 300 short stories. There ore exact figures, of course, but the author is vague about such trifles.

He still can turn out a thousand words a day, can't bear to look of some of his early books. But then there is the mature work, and he said: "I wish I could write that well today." "You know," he continued. "I don't think

I have ever taken anything seriously. In a way it's a defect, I think, Isn't It?"
